Project - Breathing new life into a 1940s tropical mansion, the design of the iconic Artyzen Hotel Singapore by ONG&ONG honors the site's history while asserting a contemporary character. Strategically situated in the heart of the city, the hotel provides a verdant oasis amidst the dynamic urban energy. Lush garden terraces stacked vertically between guest floors establish a dialogue between architecture and nature. Abundant vegetation flows from the courtyard entrance, spilling upwards via staggered walkways and cascading wall gardens. The fluid indoor-outdoor experience, enabled by porous façades, encapsulates Singapore's tropical essence. Drawing from the ornamental arches, warm materials and intimate scale of the existing structure, the design reconstitutes traditional architectural elements with a modern sensibility. Airy communal spaces bask in natural light, while suspended planters evoke openness to the sky. From the textural stonewall entrance to the cantilevered rooftop pool with its serene vistas, Artyzen Hotel Singapore provides a multi-sensory journey. Its fluid forms harmonize heritage and contemporary construction, bringing the verdant site to life through biophilic expression. An urban sanctuary imbued with greenery, the hotel translates Singapore's Garden City ambitions into a three-dimensional poem.
