Feature:

Project - The striking new Hainan Energy Trading Building by KRIS YAO | ARTECH makes a bold statement in Haikou's emerging Jiangdong New District. Its rigid exterior contrasts dramatically with lush sky gardens that punctuate the façade. This fusion of hardness and softness reflects the fledgling district's aim of combining existing conditions with cutting-edge technology.

Sustainability is at the core of this energy company's new HQ. Greenery permeates the project, from the exterior gardens to abundant interior planting. Multiple tiers of plant-filled balconies spiral through the atrium, bringing nature inside. The central courtyard also creates a pleasant microclimate thanks to effective shading and stack ventilation.

The energy-efficient double-skin facade provides uninterrupted views and showcases the slender yet robust structure. The cantilevered sky gardens rotate every four floors, made possible by mega-bracings that strengthen earthquake resistance. Automated louvers and sensors reduce the need for artificial lighting and HVAC. Like the canted roof reminiscent of traditional Jiangnan homes, the design retains and channels natural elements to increase sustainability.
